"Readers will not only discover a concise, inclusive and readable history of the suffrage movement, but will also be challenged to see exclusion and racism in many of the other historical narratives surrounding all of us."

Nancy Tate and Krysta Jones, Women's Vote Centennial Initiative Co-Chairs

"It is the book we've long needed and is certain to make a difference for public historians who use it to reassess their interpretation."

Kyle E. Ciani, Ph.D., Professor of History and Core Faculty of Women's, Genders, and Sexualities Studies at Illinois State University, author of Choosing To Care: A Century of Childcare and Social Reform in San Diego, 1850-1950, (University of Nebraska Press, 2019).

"History is fascinating and messy. Women are heroic and flawed. In Page Harrington's call to re-examine interpretations of the suffrage movement, she makes the case that museums and historic sites must do the difficult and often painful work of acknowledging the racism that influenced some of their most exalted heroines."

A'Lelia Bundles, Author, On Her Own Ground: The Life and Times of Madam C. J. Walker

Page Harrington is a public historian specializing in 20th Century women's history and the former Executive Director of the National Woman's Party at the Belmont-Paul Women's Equality National Monument. Harrington speaks frequently about women's activism and the suffrage movement and voting rights. She holds two Master's degrees from the University of San Diego-- one in Public History & Historic Preservation and the second in Non-Profit Management & Leadership.
